Short Description

1930's Kimble Glass Company laboratory beaker-shaped Martini Pitcher.

Description

During the 1930s to early 1940's, the Kimble Glass Company manufactured bottles, beakers, test tubes, vials, glass rods, and miscellaneous small items for laboratories. Somewhere/Sometime, someone got a great idea - How about altering an everyday beaker for cocktails? Well, here it is. A laboratory beaker with Cocktail recipes and measurements for ingredients. 8 recipes are provided in white print against the clear glass background around the body of the pitcher. Has a black accented base. Stands an elegant, elongated 12" tall and in excellent condition.
